

Rethinking Talent Management

Connecting strategy, performance and potential for tomorrow's challenges

THURSDAY 7 JULY 2016 • AMSTERDAM • EUROPEAN MASTERCLASS

Does your organisation have a clearly defined process for talent management? What are your organisation's key priorities for talent management today, and how effective is your business at predicting and planning for future talent needs?

For most CEOs, talent is at or near the top of their priority list, and yet lack of talent remains a major obstacle in achieving organisational goals. The talent needs of organisations are changing rapidly, but many are failing to respond at pace and are finding themselves behind the curve in attracting and developing the people they need to deliver sustainable performance. This interactive event will examine how to better align talent management with the needs of the organisation, and how current practice can be improved.

WHY ATTEND

Book your place at this European masterclass and benefit from:

- the latest insights and learnings from one of the world's senior authorities
- participative discussions with Q&A sessions and case studies, with practical recommendations
- a day of formal and informal peer-to-peer networking with senior talent and leadership professionals, and HR leaders, who want to improve the effectiveness of their investments in talent management
- a complimentary copy of our latest CRF research report - Rethinking Talent Management.
